Roosevelt Asks for 50,000 Warplanes

Warns Inland Cities Open to Raids By Air

President Urges Congress to Adopt $1,182,000,000 National Defense Emergency Program to Meet Threat of Modern War.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today proposed to congress a $1,182,000,000 emergency national defense program and called for 50,000 military and naval airplanes to meet the threat of modern war.

The combined air strength of the army and navy now is 5,563 planes.

He proposed to put national defense manufacturies on a 24-hour basis. The emergency summons of his message was couched in urgent phrases.

Mr. Roosevelt delivered his national defense message in person before a joint session of congress, called on barely 12 hours notice.

He warned that our shores—even great mid-western cities such as St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha—no longer are days, weeks or months away from potential attack, but are within hours and minutes of places which conceivably could become bases for air war.

The message asked:

1. Immediate appropriation of $896,000,000 for armament.
2. Authorization for the making of future contract obligations aggregating $286,000,000

Together with the $2,000,000,000 already asked from this congress for defense, this would make the total $3,182,000,000. And still more requests are likely before congress goes home

Great additional production capacity is our principal air requisite, Mr. Roosevelt said, adding:

"I believe that this nation should plan at this time a program that would provide us with 50,000 military and naval planes."

He said the speed of potential attack had increased from the average of five miles an hour by sailing fleets through the 15 to 20 miles an hour at which a steam battle fleet could approach our coasts, to the blitz speeds of today—200 to 300 miles an hour by air.

AFTER BARGAINS

Shoppers Ignore Weather to Flock to City's Stores.

Rain and lower temperatures failed to keep shoppers from coming down town this morning for bargains offered by 50 retail stores, and when the stores opened at 9 a. m., there was unusual activity on the streets.

Groups of women clustered about the doors of ready-to-wear stores, waiting for the doors to open.

Today and tomorrow are being observed as annual Mansfield Days, with reductions in prices in practically all lines of merchandise.

While all stores reported unusual activities, it was the women's ready-to-wear stores that received the biggest play. A feature of interest to most women were the new Nylon hose which went on sale in Mansfield stores for the first time today. There were hundreds of inquires about this new synthetic product which promises to revolutionize the silk hose industry.

The shopping event continues through tomorrow.

PREPARES FOR OFFICIAL COUNT

Election Board to Work on Sunday to Finish Primary Election Job.

Richland county election board members prepared today to go to work on Sunday to complete the official count of ballots cast at Tuesday's primary election.

The Sunday task was necessary because of state regulations requiring that an official count be made on the fifth day after the election, according to A. F. Porter, election board clerk.

Considerable interest centered on the official count today because of the 34-vote difference in the vote for the Republican nomination for sheriff. Ralph A. Schad, jr., son of a former sheriff, won the nomination on the basis of unofficial returns. He polled 1,300 votes as compared to 1,263 for Frank Deringer, runner-up.

Deringer will not ask for a recount, he said today, because of the cost involved. It costs $10 a

LINEMEN PICKET SHELBY OFFICE

Go On Strike, Charge Company Fired For Union Activity.

SHELBY—Linemen of the Telephone Engineering and Construction company went on strike here this morning and had placed pickets in front of the company's office here.

The strikers, numbering between 13 and 16, it was reported, are members of Local No. 1180, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliated with the A. F. of L., and went on strike, according to one of the strikers who refused to give his name, because some of the linemen had been fired by the company due to union activities.

The strike also affected linemen located at the company's office in Bucyrus, it was reported.

F. B. Knefel, manager of the Shelby office, could not be reached this morning for a statement.

TRY SETTLING PARTY SCRAPS OF PRIMARIES

Ohio Leaders Seek to Smooth Over Disputes Created By Insurgent Candidates.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's political leaders concentrated today on settling party quarrels as they turned their attention toward the Nov. 5 general election

Former Gov. Martin L Davey, re-nominated for a third term in Tuesday's Democratic primary, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, victorious in the Republican U. S senatorial nomination race urged their respective parties to organize aggressive campaigns.

Both Davey and Burton were subjected to sharp criticism from party leaders in their primary campaigns.

Ed D Schorr, Republican state chairman, who endorsed Rep. Dudley A. White for U S. senator because he said Burton was not a good "organization" Republican, declared that he would assist "wholeheartedly" in uniting his party in a drive to "elect our ticket in November."

Burton will oppose John McSweeney of Wooster, former congressman, who defeated Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati for the Democratic senatorial nomination Davey will face Republican Gov John W. Bricker who was renominated without opposition.

Republicans generally were optimistic over unofficial returns which showed that Governor Bricker received a complimentary vote 3,198 votes greater than the total cast in the seven-man Democratic gubernatorial race. In 1938, Democrats outvoted Republicans about 240,000 in the primary.

The total vote in the spirited Republican senatorial race, however, was 580,267, compared to 591,347 for Democratic governor, on the basis of complete unofficial returns from the state's 8,624 precincts.

Republican leaders were reported to be considering asking a special session of the legislature to separate the presidential ballot from the rest of the ticket in the November election to keep the national vote from affecting the state contests.

CLAIMS PROOF

Dies Says U. S. Menace From 'Trojan Horse' Worst.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Chairman Martin Dies of the house committee investigating unAmerican activities plans to offer soon to the house "proof" that the Trojan Horse or fifth column movement is better organized in the United States than in any other country.

He said that he intends to offer proof that subversive elements are better organized here than in other countries and also to suggest some legislation that "will take care of the situation in a constitutional way."

Dies also promised to name persons and organizations controlled by foreign governments and in a position to "do considerable damage in time of war."

City Mourns Death of Councilman Phil Smith

Civic Leader Killed By Current as He Works on Elevator Motor.

Stunned by his unexpected death, Mansfielders in all walks of life today mourned the passing of Philip Smith, 46, of 54 Home avenue, Mansfield city councilman who was electrocuted yesterday in a downtown office building.

Smith, an electrician, was working on the electrical equipment of the elevators in the Walpark building. He came in contact with a 220-volt wire, grounding the current and was killed instantly.

The accident occurred in the elevator motor house on the roof of the building. With him at the time was Howard Daubenspeck, 103 West Fifth street, with whom he had worked the past 18 years. Both were employed by the Richland Electric company. Smith was the oldest employe of the firm, having worked for the company 28 years.

Hearing Smith groan while working in the small compartment, Daubenspeck threw the electric switch shutting off the current and ran to the floor below to summon help.

Dr. Charles L. Shafer, whose offices are on the fifth floor, rushed to the roof of the building. Patrolman George Yoakum summoned from the street, imme-

MEETING OFF

Councilman's Death Postpones Study of W. Fourth Puzzle.

A special meeting of city council scheduled for tonight was postponed today due to the unexpected death of Philip Smith, Democratic councilman-at-large.

Mayor William J. Locke had issued the call for the special session yesterday to pass on legislation that would permit the state to proceed with the West Fourth street improvement.

Locke said he had rescinded the order today and that Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., had been instructed to notify council members of the action.

He said he expected that council would be called sometime next week to re-consider the proposals turned down at the May 7 meeting. Early action was necessary in order that the state can get the paving project under way.

REPORT ITALY READY TO GO TO WAR TODAY

U. S. Observers Say Il Duce Now Ready to Send His Army Against Allies.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The United States government has been warned by its official observers abroad to expect the entry of Italy into the European war today.

This was learned as it also came to light that the president, early yesterday, addressed an "eleventh hour" peace plea to Premier Benito Mussolini.

Officials would not divulge Il Duce's answer—if one has been received—but all outward indications were that Washington's intervention has not led to a definite decision by Mussolini to keep the peace

Late yesterday the state department announced that Americans in Europe had been advised to congregate in the Bordeaux section of France, in Portugal or in Spain for evacuation by specially-designated ships.

Previously, Americans from the northern and central European war zones have been evacuated through Italy. The fact that the state department—some 15 hours after the president's appeal had been sent — apparently believed that United States refugees would not be able to leave Europe from Italian ports, indicated to observers that little hope was held that Rome would stay out of the conflict.

While advices that Italy had chosen today as "der tag" came from very responsible European informants, officials pointed out that in a totalitarian state like Italy the issue of war or peace is determined in the mind of one man

Hence, it was realized that last-minute considerations might make some change in Mussolini's reported war plans.

Saturday's to Be The Day to Put on Those New Straws

Believe it or not, Saturday will be official day for bringing out the new straw chapeaux for men.

Regardless of what the thermometer does, Saturday is Straw Hat day, according to V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association and the man who makes any pretense of keeping in the mode will go forth decked out in the smartest models of Leghorn and Panama.

Straw hats are like fur coats, there are certain seasons for them and come snow, blizzards or icicles, May 18 is the official day for wearing them.

But the weather man may relent, for the thermometers are scheduled to climb upward tomorrow and possibly Saturday, and the cautious man will be prepared for it.

Stores handling men's haberdashery are "all set" for the official opening of straw hat season and stocked with the summer styles in a variety of straws and novelty braids.

Committee of 22 Starts Job Of Raising War Relief Funds

County-wide plans to raise a $6,000 quota toward the $10,000,000 Red Cross war relief fund of the nation, were under way today under the leadership of D. Osborn Meese, and a committee of 22 citizens. The committee will serve as a general war relief committee for Red Cross throughout the war.

The $6,000 quota has been apportioned according to the number of members and the funds raised during the 1940 Roll Call, and every section of the county has been urged to meet its quota.

Mansfield, which represents 71 per cent of the entire county in membership enrolled in the Roll Call, will be asked to contribute $4,605 to the war chest, while the remainder of the county, representing 32½ per cent, will be asked to raise $2,000. Of this sum, Shelby will give the greater share, as it does in the Roll Call. The Shelby branch has accepted a quota of $1,350, which leaves $650 for the remainder of the county to raise. If all quotas are raised the minimum figure of $6,000 will be topped by several hundred

The general committee, which moved with Meese today to get the drive under way, is made up of Richard M. James, Rev. Hayes M. Braker, W. C. Mead, Marshall C. Moore, Louis A. Ott, Mrs. Lester Redding, Edwin C. Geiger, George B. Ganyard, M. K. Leggett, Jane Williams, Mrs W. J.

Fresh Troops Sent Against Maginot Line

Three Mechanized Divisions Bolster German Drive In Sedan Sector; French Tanks Engaging In Battle With Invaders.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(INS)—Part of the German mechanized forces which succeeded in penetrating French lines along the River Meuse has been "annihilated," the Paris radio announced today.

(By United Press)

PARIS — Germany threw three fresh mechanized divisions into a new drive against the Maginot line defenses in the Sedan sector today soon after Premier Paul Reynaud of France had warned that the Allies might be forced to "change men and methods" to stem the Nazi offensive.

The German divisions (presumably about 45,000 fresh troops) appeared to be making a frenzied effort to crumple the French lines after having crossed the Meuse river and gained a foothold in the Maginot line defense system.

French tanks, supported by fleets of French and British planes, were said in French advices to be engaged in a "plunging battle" in an attempt to break the Nazi drive.

On the basis of French advices, the battle front was furiously active from the north border of Belgium at Antwerp, down the Dyle river before Brussels to Namur and on to the Meuse.

The Allied forces appeared to be holding firmly before Antwerp, Louvain and Brussels but south of Namur German armored cars were reported to have broken through between Namur and Dinant in a flanking operation that threatened the Dyle defense line.

The break-through of the Germans came as an estimated 2,000,000 Allied and German troops battled on a 200-mile line from Antwerp to Sedan with occasional action reported as far south as Longwy, which was reported occupied by the Germans.

Reynaud's cryptic reference to a possible change of men and methods was not expanded but was immediately interpreted here as hinting at a possible change in the French high command, now headed by Gen. Maurice Gamelin, generalissimo of Allied armies.

The change of "methods" may have been forecast by a French war communique which asserted a "war of movement" had been started—apparently an attempt by Allied

READY: Swiss Girding for Nazi March, Due 'Any Time'

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—There were unconfirmed rumors today that Germany was pressing Switzerland to accept an Italian protectorate. Conflicting in implication, were reports which reached responsible Swiss quarters here that a considerable number of German troops had been withdrawn from the frontier area opposite Basle.

(By United Press)

BERNE, Switzerland—Switzerland prepared today for a German invasion that could come at any moment and without warning.

At least 600,000 men—one-sixth of the population—were under arms, civilians were evacuating the Rhineland frontier areas and the government moved to prevent "fifth column" activities

(In London, newspapers reported that between 15 and 25 German divisions, or 225,000 to 375,000 men, were massed in the Black forest, in Baden, within striking distance of the frontier.)

The last small neutral country in western Europe had never considered itself in danger of attack by Germany until the invasion of Belgium and the Netherlands, whose neutrality also remained inviolate during the World war.

Within 18 hours of the invasion of the low countries, however, the Swiss army was mobilized at full fighting strength. General Joseph Guisan, commander-in-chief of the fighting forces, said that the defenses now were manned by full complements of men.

Organized evacuation was expected only in the frontier zones. Elsewhere, the civilian population was expected to play a useful part instead of becoming a helpless encumbrance.

It was common knowledge that the government feared "fifth column" activities because almost three million of the total four million population speaks German. About 242,000 speak Italian and the rest French.

The general opinion seemed to be that the danger would become acute should Italy enter the war on the side of Germany.

Republicans Study Convention Delay as War Measure

PARTY LEADER SOUNDING OUT CHANGE VIEWS

Shows Difficulty of Fixing Platform While Battle Rages in Europe.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A powerful Republican personage is sounding out his party's leaders today on a proposal to postpone the GOP presidential convention from June 24 to mid-August.

Two reasons lie behind the postponement suggestion:

1. The latest German "blitzkrieg" may create many new international issues that cannot be met by writing a platform in June.

2. The second world war likely will be still raging in June but may be settled by August and its outcome might have a predominant influence upon the naming of the Republican presidential nominee.

Officials at Republican national headquarters denied knowledge of any postponement plan and indicated opposition to it. One GOP official said that it would be almost impossible to postpone the convention, because of commitments in Philadelphia for the convention hall, hotels and radio time.

Idea Tested

The idea, however, is being tested among Republican chieftains. Rep. Joseph W. Martin, jr., Republican leader of the house, was asked whether he had heard the suggestion. Martin replied:

"Yes, a proposal of that character has been called to my attention. Personally, I haven't reached any conclusion as to whether it would be wise or not."

Martin said he did not know how many Republican leaders had been approached on the subject. He would not identify its author.

The Republicans will be under one political handicap by meeting in June. They will not know the identity of the Democratic nominee, because President Roosevelt now has enough pledged delegates to secure a third term nomination but no one can say with certainty whether he will accept or reject it. And if the president declines, no one now can say who will be the nominee, even though Secretary of State Cordell Hull appears to be the favorite.

The GOP will be under another handicap—in that they probably will have to write a plank on international affairs without knowing definitely how the European war is to end. They are even likely to be writing that plank while one of the greatest battles in all human history is being fought on European soil, with its outcome undetermined.

One Democratic voter in Tuesday's primaries lost his vote because he wanted a Republican governor. When the votes at City building were counted Tuesday night, there was found a Democratic ballot on which the name of John W. Bricker was written in under the regular candidates. It indicated a decided lack of knowledge in voting regulations. You just can't vote for Republican candidates on Democratic ballots and vice versa. The ballot was not only discarded but hung on the door of the room as a lesson in voting restrictions to others.

OPPOSE CHANGE IN LEGISLATURE

Ohio Chamber of Commerce Hits Reapportionment of Representatives.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The proposed constitutional amendment for legislative reapportionment today bore the opposition of the board of directors of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, according to President A. Graves Williams of Portsmouth.

The Chamber directors expresses satisfaction with the present legislative set-up "in its system of checks between urban and rural sections."

The proposed amendment would divide the state into 35 districts, of approximately 200,000 persons, each district having a senator and four representatives.

This would change the present system under which 68 members of the lower house represent fewer than the theoretically population basis of 66,467 persons. Under the present system Vinton county with 10,287 inhabitants has one representative—the same as Butler county with 114,084 population and Lorain county with 109,206.

This was possible because an amendment in 1903 gave each county one representative, to be supplemented by additional representatives based on population.

The Chamber directors approved a plan to revive a bill calling for a centralized purchasing system in the counties. The board also declared the current investigation of life insurance companies by the O'Mahoney committee was unnecessary as to Ohio because of an efficient state commission.

FOREIGN MART SHUT OFF BY WAR BLOCKADE

Additional Funds to Bolster Prices Planned; Surplus Foods for Needy.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—With the war closing many foreign markets to American farm products, authoritative sources said today that the administration plans to ask congress soon for upwards of $400,000,000 for price-blostering loans on 1940 crop surpluses.

Such funds would supplement the $750,000,000 farm subsidies and benefits tentatively approved by both the house and senate in the agricultural department supply bill.

Farm officials are viewing the foreign market outlook with anxiety. Secretary Wallace predicted yesterday that exports during the coming fiscal year would be 30 per cent smaller than this year.

Normal production under the federal crop control program would add to surpluses and could be expected, officials said, to have a depressing effect on prices.

Under existing legislation, the agricultural department is authorized to make loans to producers on surpluses at rates tending to bolster prices.

However, loan funds available were said to total less than $100,000,000. Through loans from the Reconsruction Finance Corporation and congressional appropriations, $1,000,000,000 has been made available to the Commodity Credit Corporation for such loans.

About $900,000,000 of this amount is now tied up. Latest reports showed that the government investment in cotton alone was about $500,000,000.

The agriculture department announced plans to treble operations under its "food stamp" program of distributing surpluses among needy families. Participating needy persons would be increased from 1,300,000 to 4,000,000.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Stars In the Midnight Sun.

Around this season of the year, when daylight saving time delays the electric fireworks in Times Square, the World's Fair draws the playing crowds, bands move from cellars to rooftops, and stars close their plays and take the Twentieth Century back to Hollywood, Broadway draws to the close of its fiscal year, and the Broadwayites who sit around tables until dawn count back over the months of midnights to recall what happened to the season, what new faces clicked, what stars were born. In a capsule, this reviews the winter: old stars, many; new stars, few.

The span of the 1939-40 semester has offered only a handful of new names who can take their places with the tried and true.

Danny Kaye, the young comedian, gets my vote for the all-time discovery in the night club field, for making audiences laugh louder and longer and for a greater variety of reasons than anyone who faced a cafe crowd this year.

Vivien Leigh was the cinema skyrocket the night her Scarlett O'Hara was flashed simultaneously on two Broadway screens. Tony Martin's tonsils, exercised in a night spot, finally brought him the plaudits and the pesetas that eluded him when he was just a young man who sang in Zanuck musicals. Glenn Miller was the No. 1 band.

Orrin Tucker, with one record, "Oh, Johnny Oh," bowed in as a coast to coast dance orchestra sensation, and his sleepy-voiced singer, baby-talked her way into the ear of the nation.

Rochester, Jack Benny's dusky assistant, became the champion stooge of the airlanes. John Buckmaster, hitherto known only as a young British actor, blossomed into an expert mimic and delighted the thespian-literati group at the Algonquin. Greta Keller brought Vienna to the same room.

Down in the Village, a group of boys and girls with a talent for satire graduated from the Village Vanguard to the Rainbow room, and when they were gone the Vanguard installed another discovery—the Gerald Clark Calypso Singers. At le Ruban Bleu, the candle light reflected the talents of Paula Laurence, who toys with the classics.

The stages of the town parted its curtains to reveal some new faces and some that were not new but were seen for the first time in worthy roles.

Monty Woolley was "discovered" after years, in a tailor-made part in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Betty Field's talent had its innings and won splendid reviews in "Two on an Island." Ingenue Gene Tierney was a critic's pet, and had to leave "The Male Animal" to be reclasped to Hollywood's formerly chilly bosom.

Ingrid Bergman, none too well cast in "Liliom," gave a luminous performance. Bert Lytell, after years as one of the matinee profile boys, stepped, expertly into a character part in "Margin for Error." Eddie Bracken brought a crew haircut and a funny face onto the stage of "Too Many Girls" and was swiftly adopted by the cinema. Glenn Anders was the critics' white-haired boy for his performance in "Skylark."

The rest of the entertainment chores went to the old timers. Sophie Tucker still proved as hefty at the box office as she is in person. The Hartmans get bigger and bigger audiences. Hildegarde's fans still adore her. Harry Richman is always one of the island's big hits wherever he plays, and the DeMarcos, unquestionably rule as the town's favorite dance team. Old-timers like Joe Howard, Fritzi Scheff and Frank Libuse were largely responsible for the record-breaking 17-month run of the Diamond Horseshoe show.

Of all this year's finds, Bonnie Baker, the kitten-voiced Cinderella is perhaps the best known to the nation. For a while it was hard to tune a dial on a radio or put a nickel in a "juke box" without hearing her schoolgirl treble sighing "Oh Johnny, how you can love," and now it is hard to turn a dial without hearing one of her imitators. She started a whole new thing.

At Lindy's House of Commons the Tin Pan Alley division looks upon her as a wonder girl who changed the music pace of the nation—she sang a shy dreamy little ditty and like a bolt out of the blue network a sweet band was making a hit with the kids from coast to coast.

She is a little girl, as little as her voice, and she stands at the microphone with her hands at her sides and just sings the way she feels. She has dimples, and she likes dogs. She is not married or on her way to Hollywood, and she doesn't want to be. She just wants to sing with a band.

Danny Kaye's brand of comedy, currently on display at La Martinique, soon to transfer to Ben Marden's Riviera, veers from imitations of a sneezing Russian to a dreamy monologue that ends in a mad conga. And when he finishes these, he sings a straight Irish folk song. He is a tall, broad-shouldered young man with blond wavy hair and amazing versatility of dialect and expression, and he hails from the Catskill borscht circuit via the Philippines, Japan, China and Australia.

He is married to his accompanist, Sylvia Fine, who wrote the "Straw Hat Review," and when he has nothing to do he strolls down to Union Square or up to Columbus Circle and heckles the down-with-America soap-boxers.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The job found the man.

The man did the best he could, short of leaving town and pictures forever, but the job caught up with him.

The job is directing the Marx Brothers in "Go West."

The man is Eddie Buzzell. They're calling him "the two-time loser" because he also was found by the job of directing the Marxes "At the Cicus."

"I'm an ambitious youth," he cracked, "and there's no future in this picture. If it's good, the boys get the credit. If it's bad, it's Buzzell. I did what I could. I pretended I wasn't here as soon as I heard they were looking for a director. I asked my agent to find me a picture somewhere else. The finger was on me. My past caught up with me."

Eddie's past had been in vaudeville and musical comedy, and that's the kind of movie the Marxes make.

"Well, I'll do it," said Eddie, resignedly. "I lived through one of them, I can live through another. Trouble is, directing the Marxes you've got to be director and wet nurse and diplomat all at the same time.

"I understand it, though. I'm a ham myself. The boys get worried. Like when I was in musicals. The comedian always rehearsed apart from the rest of the show. He worked out routines and only later would he rehearse with the full company. After I worked on a routine a while I was sick of it. It stunk. So I'd try it anyway, and the chorines, hearing it for the first time, would laugh. I'd get a lift, and the ham in me would glow. Pretty soon the chorines wouldn't laugh any more, because it was stale to them, and I'd be sure the routine was a stinker after all."

So he's ready to brave the fire of the volatile, unpredictable Marxes, and maybe you would like to know more about him. In the first place, he's honest. As a youngster, errand boy in a Brooklyn tie factory at $5 a week, he found a bankbook and $15 in cash. He returned the bankbook and kept the $15 to bring $5 a week home while he joined a kid troupe in a New York theater, sub rosa. He's honest because he admits he made no effort to return the $15. Finders keepers, military necessity, and all that.

He joined Gus Edwards and a few years later was a headliner. His first musical was "Gingham Girl." By 1929 he had saved $250,000—all in stocks. He sat in his agent's office and watched stocks tumble on the Times' electric bulletin belt. He borrowed $5,000 on his insurance, took a West Indies cruise to collect his thoughts, wound up in Hollywood where he already had starred in one movie, "Little Johnny Jones." This was so well remembered that he couldn't get inside a studio. Eventually he talked his way into Columbia, where he launched a series of shorts, and thence got into feature direction.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, May 17.

A lively day, with some activity of a peculiar or subtle nature, is the augury based on the lunar transits. While tension and high pressure may culminate in successful issues, mainly through the co-operation of superiors, elders and those in power, there also may be hazards brought about by too impetuous or reckless attacks. Shun over-strenuous exertions and passionate or violent clamor in favor of tactful and thoughtful behavior.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively year, with certain developments of a singular or undercover nature engaging the major attention. This may be in connection with groups or social bodies of a humanitaian or progressive objective and should thrive unless offset by overagressive, impetuous or rash tactics. Restrain tempestuous, violent or inharmonious impulses.

A child born on this day may be energetic, enterprising, constructive and practical, but also tempestuous, impulsive and reckless, thereby causing its own undoing. Nevertheless, it may have the confidence of elders and women folk.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Mary would have been almost unnoticed had it not been for the old actress, Nancy Carew. After her gracious speech in acknowledgement of Olina's introduction to her, she unobtrusively quit the circle crowding around Olina, and, crossing to Mary's side, began an animated conversation with her.

"'At a girl, Nancy!" Lillian murmured. "Come on, Madge! Let's swell the court around Mary!"

I followed her, with gratitude to Nancy Carew and resentment against Philip Veritzen battling each other in my heart.

"'Lo Nancy!" Lillian greeted her easily. "Still mowing 'em down, I hear. I adore that radio sketch of yours."

"I sort of like it myself," Miss Carew admitted. "But speaking of radio—do you realize what a voice is here?"

"Oh! Miss Carew," Mary said breathlessly, and Lillian struck in casually.

"You really think she's good, Nancy?"

"Better than that," the old actress returned with decision, and Lillian turned to Mary with a bow.

"You've just been listening, my dear, to one of the finest judges of voices in all the theatrical world," she said. "Better practice up your exercises, and get your fountain pen ready to sign a contract."

"Oh!" Mary said breathlessly again, and then Philip Veritzen moved effortlessly over to our group and shook a playful finger at Miss Carew.

"Don't you know that we must creep before we walk?" he asked rhetorically. "You mustn't put foolish ideas into the child's head. She hasn't even won a single spur yet dramatically, and you are talking radio to her."

"You can wager I am," Miss Carew returned spiritedly, "and I know what I'm talking about. Don't waste time doubting that this lassie will win her dramatic spurs. She'll have a full set of 'em by the time the curtain falls on her first performance."

She paused, but only to speak again, her eyes fixed on Philip Veritzen.

"I've seen many of them come and go, as you know, Phil," she said, "many of them in your own productions. Once I stood where she is standing this morning. And in all these years—I'm telling you this with calm deliberation—I never saw a young woman, or man either, with anywhere near the divine spark that your daughter-in-law has. You ought to be simply swollen with pride over her."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

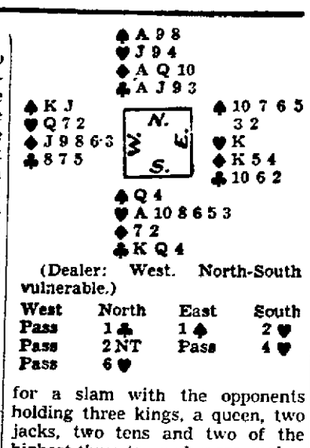
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PRETTY DEEP FIGURING

With a simple set of facts to work from, a fine deductive player can reach conclusions on some deals which result in making the prettiest sort of plays. The mere failure of a player to lead the suit bid by his partner may furnish the necessary clue to every vital fact needed by the declarer who thinks. If it is clear the suit was not so long that he was void in it, then he must be ducking a lead away from an honor. Going further, if the suit bidder did not hold that honor, then he must have a certain other honor in another suit. And so on, and so on.

North's jump to slam was a beautiful example of sublime faith in his partner, Lee Hazen, who has been gaining more and more fame for his fine work in national championships. Going for a slam with the opponents holding three kings, a queen, two jacks, two tens and two of the highest three trump honors, makes quite an assignment.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♥
Pass	2 NT	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	6 ♥

As with the hand shown yesterday, Mr. Hazen had to build a squeeze position on this one. When West led the club 8, he reasoned that a spade would have been led unless West had the guarded king; in this event East must have some other high honor for his bid. When the heart A then dropped the singleton K, he reckoned it must be the diamond K. He led a heart to the Q and, when West returned the diamond 6, he came up with the A.

Next came a heart, then three clubs, for a diamond discard. The crucial play then was the diamond Q, covered by the K and ruffed. This transferred the high diamond from East's K to West's J. Hearts were run then. When the last was led West was squeezed between his diamond J, as the dummy had the 10, and his two spades, both declarer and dummy having two of them. Had the diamond K been allowed to stay with East, he could have guarded that suit while West protected the spades.

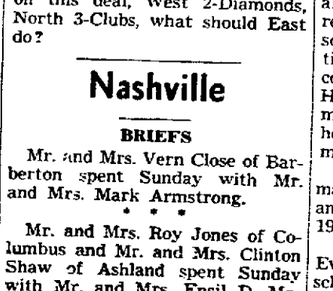
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

If South bids a psychic 1-Spade on this deal, West 2-Diamonds, North 3-Clubs, what should East do?

BEWARE THE CUCUMBER BEETLE

As if by magic cucumber beetles appear as soon as cucumber seedlings stick their heads above ground. Despite the mystery of their appearance, there are several effective ways of discouraging the depredations of these pests among the cucumber plants, including the use of tobacco dust, pyrethrum, rotenone, or flour mixed with Paris green. The remedy used should be scattered over and about the plants.

A greatly enlarged portrait of the cucumber beetle is shown in Figure 1 of the accompanying Garden-Graph to aid you in identifying this pest. It is a rather gay bandit of the bug world for it sports yellow-striped wings. A big eater, the bettle feeds on the cucumber foliage and unless checked will destroy a crop within a few days. These beetles also spread the destructive cucumber wilt, the effects of which are illustrated in Figure 2.

To protect cucumber plants from wilt, they should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture at intervals of two weeks. Apply the first spray when the plants are only a few inches high. If a plant shows tell-tale signs of "wilt" destroy it at once to keep the disease from spreading to the other plants.

CITY MOURNS DEATH OF SMITH

Councilman and Civic Leader Killed While Working on Elevator Motor.

diately started administering artificial respiration.

He was assisted within a few minutes by the fire department inhalator squad and a first aid crew from the Ohio Public Service company along with Patrolmen C. W. Kyler and Russell Miles who were ordered to the scene. They were summoned by Atty. George Blecker who also heard Daubenspeck's cries for help.

The crew worked unsuccessfully for nearly two hours, after Dr. Shafer administered a heart stimulant.

County Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler pronounced a verdict of accidental electrocution.

Daubenspeck said he and Mr. Smith had gone to work in the building about 1 p. m. They were installing wiring on one of the switch grids and had the current on that particular elevator shut off.

In order to make identical connections, he told police, Mr. Smith had crawled into the closure housing the second elevator motors, to count the connections while he tabulated the count.

"All at once I heard Phil groan," Daubenspeck said. "I couldn't see in so I pulled the main line switch to shut off the current and then pulled him out."

Born in Mansfield April 10, 1894, Mr. Smith had spent his entire life in the community. He had a wide and varied civic career.

His death was the second in council's ranks within the past year.

Elected in 1935, he served as councilman-at-large for one term. He returned to that post last fall when he was elected by council members to fill the unexpired term of George Berg who advanced to the presidency following the death of Karl P. Troll, then council president.

Mr. Smith began his second term as councilman-at-large Jan. 1, having been elected to the office last fall. He was a Democrat.

As a member of council, he was chairman of the newly created traffic committee and was working with the Citizens' Traffic committee on the Mansfield traffic problem. He was also chairman of the parks committee and a member of the sewer committees.

Mr. Smith was probably one of Mansfield's outstanding youth leaders and gave freely of his time to them.

As Mansfield district Boy Scout commissioner, he was recently given the Silver Beaver award, made annually by the Boy Scouts for outstanding service to boyhood.

In addition to that award, Smith also received a veteran award in recognition of his 15 years as a scoutmaster. He first became active in the movement in 1924 as a committeeman of troop No. 5 at Hedges school. He was scoutmaster from 1930 to 1931, when he was appointed district commissioner.

Mr. Smith was the first chairman of the city recreation board, an office he held from 1924 to 1937.

A member of the St. John's Evangelical church and Sunday school, he taught the Bracca class for the past 20 years. He was a member of the church council and brotherhood and was former president of the council.

He was active in Hedges park community movements and was a former president of the Hedges school Parent-Teachers association. He was a member of the Order of the Owls and the I. O. O. F., serving on the board of trustees of the latter organization.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, Emma; three sons, Paul, Raymond and James, and a daughter, Ruth, all at home; two brothers, Edward and William Smith, both of Mansfield.

His body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday. Rev. Paul H. Salcste, pastor of the St. John's Evangelical church will officiate. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

TWO NUPTIAL EVENTS OF INTEREST HERE

Leesville Couple Return Today, to Live In City; Second Pair Wed at Adventist Church May 11.

TWO NUPTIAL EVENTS of interest here were revealed this morning. Word has come from Leesville of the marriage of Miss Kathryn Heckler, graduate of Mansfield General hospital and nurse there, to Willard Eckstein, Leesville. They were married at the home of Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Renner at Trenton on May 4.

Rev. Renner had been pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran church at Leesville when the former Miss Heckler was a resident there.

After the extremely simple service, the pair left for a motor trip through Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland, and upon their return here today they took up their residence at 110½ Marion avenue.

Mr. Eckstein, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eckstein, operates a filling station, and is a graduate of the Leesville high school. The bride, who was also graduated from Leesville school, is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Heckler. In a few weeks she will resume her duties at the hospital.

The Seventh Day Adventist church of this city was the scene of the marriage of Miss Eleanore Humbel, Friendsville, and Ellsworth Chaffee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Chaffee, Greenwich, May 11 at 11:30 a. m. The former Miss Humbel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Humbel, and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. William Dress, East Fourth street.

Elder T. W. Thirlwell, Mt. Vernon, and H. R. Veach, pastor, officiated. Attendants were Miss Maxine Hyde, Lakewood, and Floyd Wood. A wedding dinner was served at the bride's home following the ceremony. A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Borchers, 49 West Second street, during the evening honored the pair who will leave soon to make their home at Seattle, Wash.

Fourteen were in attendance including the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. G. E. Gladden of Springfield. Games were the diversion, with prizes being awarded to all present and they in turn being presented to the honoree. These prizes were kitchen articles. The grand prize was given to Mrs. R. M. Campbell. The guests also honored Miss Gladden with a shower of miscellaneous gifts, and Mrs. Smart gave her a lace tablecloth.

At a late hour a luncheon was served buffet style with appointments in pink and white. Apple blossoms and tall white tapers decorated the center of the table. While in Mansfield Mrs. Gladden and her daughter will visit Mrs. Fred Edwards, South Boulvards.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. (Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Friendly House Presents All-Star Boxing Show Tonight

By CHARLES MARTIN

AN ALL-STAR amateur boxing show that promises to outshine any simon-pure fight card staged in Mansfield in several years will be unfolded before sports enthusiasts at 8:15 p. m. today when the Friendly House holds its Boxers' Medical Benefit Fund program at the Armory.

* * * * *

Not only will the national amateur middleweight champion appear in the affair, but three of the finest leather slingers ever developed by the Friendly House will display their wares.

* * * * *

Joe Maxin of Cleveland is the 160-pound king, while Jake Zacharias, middleweight, Beauford Glover, lightweight, and Paul Carbetta, bantamweight, make up the Mansfield trio.

Tonight's interesting card consists of three five-round settos, four three-rounders, two brief preliminary matches and a battle royal between settlement youngsters.

Maxin and Zacharias square off in one main go, while Glover takes on Frank Franklin of Columbus in the other. Carbetta meets Ernie Mossman of Cleveland in the five-round semi-final heat.

This Maxin-Zacharias meeting is expected to act as a magnet in drawing fight fans to the Armory. These two lads tangled in an opening round bout in the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament earlier this year and the former emerged with a close decision.

Mansfielders who saw the bout claimed Jake could beat Maxin if they met again, and Russ Gimbel, Friendly House director, has been working several weeks in lining up the battle.

While many believe Glover, one of the hardest hitting lightweights in north central Ohio, will dispose of Franklin in record time, this may be one of the top events on the program.

Franklin, the Capital city champion, is a clever boxer, and Glover might have trouble landing a knockout punch. The Columbus lad, who fought in Battery D's "Battle of Champions" last month, was impressive in handing Ray Howman, rugged Ashland lightweight, one of the worst beatings of his career.

What Carbetta does against Mossman will be watched with interest. The 18-year-old Mansfielder was a flyweight, but advanced to the bantamweight class recently. He has scored two easy wins as a bantam, but Mossman is expected to provide his toughest opposition.

Mossman is an aggressive fighter, always moving in, both fists flying. Carbetta is a polished boxer and should be able to keep the Clevelander away.

Howman, who always puts up a thrilling battle, is set for the main three-rounder against Howard Hodges of Marion. Hodges won a place in the hearts of Mansfield fans in the "Battle of Champions" by slugging out a decision over Dan Matthes of Columbus.

Hodges came here to act as Matthes' second, but when the Columbus youth's opponent failed to appear, Hodges took his place. The Marion lad has a wicked left that carries plenty of dynamite.

Joe Sauer, 147, Friendly House, meets Jack King of Columbus; Sam Walker, 124, Friendly House, tackles Jackie Harrison, 125, Cleveland, and Ed Tally, 116, Friendly House, trades punches with Orville Fisher, 115, Cleveland.

Harrison comes here well-recommended. He recently decisioned Peters, novice featherweight champion of the Cleveland Golden Gloves tourney. Walker and Tally have looked good in their last two fights and tonight's performances should be the acid test.

In the prelims, the youngsters from the Friendly House boxing classes will do the battling. A battle royal will be staged during the evening.

* * * * *

The money cleared tonight will be placed in a fund to take care of Friendly House fighters who are injured in settlement boxing bouts.

* * * * *

Al Sauer, Friendly House, crack lightheavyweight, will not be ready to go in this show. He suffered a broken thumb in the Battery D fight and will be idle at least another month.

Hurler Joins Braves

Manager Stover Attempts To Strengthen Pitching; Tilt Rained Out.

SEEKING frantically to bolster his mound staff, Manager Dewey Stover today secured Bob Petersen, lefthand hurler from Iowa, and announced that additional pitchers will be added to the Mansfield Braves' hurling corps.

Petersen, who was sent here from Flint, Mich., of the Michigan State league, was released to Mansfield on option. He saw service with Charleston, W. Va., in the Mid-Atlantic league early this season, but needed further experience.

Their contest with Fremont at the Fairground last night rained out, the Braves invaded Tiffin today to tackle the Mudhens in an Ohio State league game.

Lloyd "Deacon" Joyce, veteran righthander, will toe the rubber against Tiffin as the Braves attempt to hop back in the win column.

Stover announced today that Bob Arnold will face Tiffin in the "Ladies'" night game at the Fairground under the floodlights at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

Mansfield will remain at the Fairground to entertain Findlay under the arcs Saturday night. The game was originally scheduled for Saturday afternoon, but club officials changed game time until 8:15 p. m. because of the high school track meet at Stadium field Saturday.

Mansfield Will See Scholastic Record-Smasher

Bob Shaw of Fremont, Holder of Relays Shot Put Record, to Compete In Meet Here.

By GEORGE SATTLER

ONE of the greatest high school athletes ever to perform before Mansfield sport fans will be on hand Saturday when the eastern half of the Northwestern District track and field meet gets under way at Stadium field.

He is Bob Shaw—brilliant record-smasher in the weight events and nationally-known football and basketball star.

Mansfielders first saw Shaw in action a month ago when, on his first throw, he heaved the shot for 54 feet, a solid three feet, eight and three-quarter inches farther than the former Relays record. A few minutes later the lanky Fremont lad dazzled the spectators again by calmly outtossing all comers in the discus.

Coach Harry Mehock, who has seen high school athletes come and go for the past 15 years, tagged him that day as "probably the greatest high school athlete in the United States today."

But Bob's accomplishments don't stop with breaking track and field records. Followers of football and basketball from up Fremont way say he's the greatest ball handler that ever walked out on the gridiron or basketball court.

However, as they will hastily point out to the doubters, you don't have to take their word for Shaw's prowess on the athletic fields. They can, with ease, dig up plenty of clippings to prove their point, from papers all over the country.

For it was last year that Bob Shaw made two Associated Press All-Ohio athletic teams, a feat that approaches story-book heights.

He was chosen fullback on the All-Ohio football team and center on the All-Ohio basketball quintet for the 1939-40 season. And there is hardly a town where the Fremont Ross team has competed in track this year that does not now have a Bob Shaw record on its books.

Of course, there is no way of telling whether or not he will break any district records at Stadium field Saturday, but it seems a little more than likely that he will.

BUCYRUS, TIFFIN ENTER

Coach Harry Mehock announced today that two more teams had notified Mansfield officials of their entrance in the eastern division of the Northwestern district meet at Stadium field Saturday. They are Bucyrus and Tiffin Junior Order.

Wreckers Chalk up Third Straight Win

COMING from behind with a three-run rally in the last of the seventh, the Mansfield Wrecking company softball team registered a thrilling 6 to 5 victory over the Schoolmasters at North Lake park yesterday.

* * *

The Wreckers were trailing, 5 to 3, when they went into the seventh. It was the winner's third straight triumph.

Three moundsmen paraded to the mill for the Wreckers. Goler started the game, Shaffer following in the fourth and Bob Feld came in to handle the duties in the ninth.

Scoring three runs in the first, the Wreckers took an early lead, but the Schoolmasters forged ahead by a 3-2 count in the third. Manager Nick Wagner's club, however, knotted the score in the last of that frame.

Single tallies in the fifth and sixth enabled the Schoolmasters to again take the advantage which they held until the last of the seventh. Harold Aston was the batting star for the winners with a triple, single and double.

* * *

Pat Greenstein and Johnson each contributed a double and single to the Wreckers' 11-hit attack. Hunter, Orville and Fogle led the losers with two hits apiece.

Teams Really Battle

Reds and Dodgers Fighting As If Series Was Crucial.

(By Associated Press)

SOMETIMES it's a little hard to believe, but the National league still is a pitchers' league. The games yesterday would have satisfied any doubters.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-2 on the five-hit hurling of Gene Thompson and a merry-go-round in the first inning; Larry French held the Boston Bees to two hits as the Chicago Cubs triumphed 2-0; lean old Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants kept eight hits well scattered in penning up the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2, and Kirby Higbe, the Philadelphia speedballer, easily whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3 on 11 hits.

French's southpaw slants had Boston helpless, but Nick Strincevich nearly matched him. For six innings each gave up only one single. The loss was Boston's fifth straight.

The only runs Hubbell permitted the Pirates were home runs by Lee Handley on the first pitch of the game and by Bob Elliott in the fourth inning.

Joe Moore gave him a margin in the third with a two-run homer. Mace Brown, who was charged with the loss, and Dick Lanahan held the Giants to seven hits, but were always in hot water.

Higbe's assignment against the Cardinals was a snap after the Phillies slapped out six singles for six runs in the second inning. As a result he never had to bear down very hard and even three runs for St. Louis in the fifth on Joe Orengo's home run, two singles and a double by Johnny Mize didn't create much of a stir.

All games in the American league were postponed because of rain and cold weather.

A's Rookie Third Sacker Uses Archery to Strengthen Wing

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—In all the hullabaloo over Connie Mack's signing of Benny McCoy, the free agent second baseman, another high priced infielder slipped into the Athletics' fold almost unnoticed.

Mack outbid a flock of other clubs, contracted McCoy for $45,000 and got reams of publicity for his A's. But no one dug out black headlines when Al Rubeling joined the A's. Al came from Atlanta in the Southern association and cost $35,000, a pretty penny for Connie.

Only two or three of the rookies brought up last Spring cost more than the A's young third baseman. Connie thinks he is a great prospect.

Al is happy to be with Philadelphia because as a youngster he idolized Joe Boley, A's shortstop during the championship years of 1929-30-31.

Rubeling had a comparatively weak throwing arm while in the minors and adopted a unique method of strengthening it. He took up archery.

"I'm no William Tell," he says and grins. "My best score was 589 out of a perfect 810."

He thinks he can handle the bow and arrow well enough now to hunt with them.

"I've been told that arrows are more effective than shotguns in getting deer," he says.

Al shoots around 80 in golf, bowls and plays billiards. His hobby is collecting pipes. He has nearly two dozen.

Al is a bachelor but he is "thinking of getting married in the fall."

Indians Settle Down For Drive on Pennant

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Indians, their roster cut to the required 25 players, settled down today for concentrated drive on the first-place Boston Red Sox.

The Hub City club was two and a half games in front of the Redskins as Oscar Vitt's team tangled with Washington in the opener of a three-game series. Al Milnar was selected for mound duty with Sid Hudson or Joe Haynes due for the Nats.

The Indians meet the Yankees three times and Boston twice before closing their home stand next Thursday.

Rain forced postponement of the second game of the Philadelphia series yesterday. The front office meanwhile announced that Pitcher Ken Jungles had been optioned to Milwaukee of the American Association. This coupled with the outright release of Pitcher Willis Hudlin put the tribe inside the league player limit.

Manager Vitt said that Roy Weatherly, speedy center fielder, would be out of action indefinitely with a strained leg muscle suffered on the first eastern trip. This means Ben Chapman will remain in center field, with Beau Bell in right.

* * *

The Indians enter the thick of the pennant drive with 10 pitchers, three catchers, seven infielders and five outfielders. Oscar Grimes, utility infielder, is still in a Washington hospital as a result of being hit in the face by a batted ball.

FRICK SCHEDULES HEARING ON CINCINNATI PROTEST

NEW YORK —(INS)— President Ford Frick of the National league scheduled a hearing today to discuss the protest filed by the Cincinnati Reds over Tuesday's 13-inning game with the Dodgers at Ebbets field which Brooklyn won 6 to 5.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds charged that Charley Gilbert's hit in the seventh inning struck Umpire Bill Klem and that in violation of the rules Leo Durocher was permitted to advance from first to third on the blow.

HENRY GULLEN DIES

Sales are hitting new highs...so Buick dealers are ready to make swell deals.

Wouldn't it be tragic if you missed it!

JUST suppose that down the street a dealer had an automobile so close to your heart's desire that it might have been made to your own specifications.

Suppose it had the room you've been wanting — the big, strapping size you'd like — the imposing style and good looks and soul-satisfying luxury of appointment.

Suppose it had all the life and zip and action you could ask for and a big, durable, thrifty power plant that could match even fine watchworks for smoothness.

Suppose you knew that car set the standard for real modernity and value—but just assumed that it must be out of your reach because it was so obviously good!

Wouldn't it be tragic if you passed up that honey — just because you didn't inquire what the prices actually were?

Here and there that's happening, we fear. Happening because people who want Buicks aren't getting the actual facts.

Maybe you didn't know that there are five 1940 Buicks at five different price ranges.

That every one of these has a big, husky, straight-eight engine electrically balanced after assembly by Buick's own exclusive process.

That soft, stout coil springs are found on every one — that every one has recoil-mounted Knee-Action, finger-flick transmission, bona fide Buick styling — features literally counted by the dozen.

Maybe you didn't know, above all, that for Buick SPECIAL models, current prices† begin as low as $895 ★for the business coupe, delivered at Flint. That even when you add transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), and optional equipment and accessories, delivered prices are the lowest ever on such value.

But all that's true. You can prove it any day by asking for a demonstration that costs nothing, and involves no obligation.

So why take a chance of missing something gorgeously great that could be yours for the trying? Do something, and do it now — go see your Buick dealer!

Buick prices begin at $895★ for Business Coupe (Illustrated)

†Prices subject to change without notice.

BETHLEHEM TOPS STOCK ADVANCE IN MART TODAY

Steels, Aircrafts in Selective List; Wheat, Corn at Chicago Move Swiftly Forward.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Steels and aircrafts led a selective advance in the stock market today.

Bethlehem again was in the van of the forward push as was Youngstown Sheet. Boeing and Lockheed, all up more than a point.

Cotton was mixed. Rubber declined sharply. Wheat and corn at Chicago moved swiftly higher. The pound sterling and the French franc were steady.

Conversations in Wall street board rooms before the opening, as well as brokers' advices to their clients, indicated the war was still almost the sole market factor, and that domestic buisness news was being largely ignored for the time being.

STAGE CLEAN-UP

British Police Round Up Thousands of Enemy Aliens.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Scotland Yard men swept down on thousands of Germans and Austrians who had been permitted liberty today, in a determined drive to prevent activities of "trojan horse" elements in view of the threat of a German attempt to invade Britain.

Sir John Anderson, home secretary and home security minister, ordered the internment of all Germans and Austrians between the ages of 16 and 60 years.

Irate Inventor Stages Walk-Out on Explosive Test

ASSERTS ARMY SPOILED PLAN FOR GOAT WAR

Congressmen Irked at Barlow Refusal to Carry Out Demonstration.

(By International News Service)

ABERDEEN, Md. — A rain-drenched congressional committee and miscellaneous brasshats of the army left Aberdeen proving grounds today without seeing a demonstration of Inventor Lester P. Barlow's claimed deadly glmite explosive.

Mr. Barlow did not leave immediately for the obvious reason that he was detained while the congressmen muttered about holding him in contempt of their committee for refusing to go through with his demonstration.

From a confusion of allegations, charges, suspicions and guesses the walk-out demonstration boiled down to this:

1. Barlow claimed that the army officers had jobbed him by ordering him to hang his 1,000-pound bag of glmite too far in advance of the arrival of the committee with the result that it lost too much oxygen—part of its explosive combination—to put on a demonstration.

2. Colonel Burton O. Lewis, executive officer at the proving grounds, denied the charge.

3. Representative Andrew J. May, chairman of the house military affairs committee, said: "We were the goats for this experiment. It was set for nine a. m. Barlow left the grounds at five minutes before nine."

4. Barlow had his watch on daylight saving time while Maryland is on eastern standard time. By his watch the demonstration was 55 minutes behind schedule when he jumped angrily into his car and drove off.

5. Rep. Charles I. Faddis of Pennsylvania, a member of the house military committee, ordered army men not to allow Barlow to leave the reservation. "He is here under subpoena," Faddis said.

6. Temporary beneficiaries of the called-off demonstration were 232 goats who were to have been blown up in batches of 84, first by glmite, then by TNT and then by more TNT.

7. Sen. Morris Sheppard, of Texas, chairman of the senate military affairs committee, arrived late and took a calm view of the situation. "I think we ought to have this thing yet," he said. "Let's postpone it for a week. That will give this man time to prepare another charge. Next time he can wait until we are all here and ready before he hangs it."

DEBATE STARTS ON RELIEF BILL

House Plans Fight Against Roosevelt Spending Bid.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The house began debate today on the 1941 relief appropriation. Ranking Republican members opposed vigorously a provision permitting President Roosevelt to spend $975,000,000 in WPA funds during the first eight months of the next fiscal year.

Four Republican members of the house appropriations committee, which approved the measure yesterday, asserted in a minority report that the amount provided for WPA should be spread over the entire fiscal year.

RELIEF CRISIS

LABOR VOICES WAR PROTEST

Steel Workers Say They'll Help Defend Country Against Invaders.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Opposition to American intervention in foreign wars was voiced today by the CIO steel workers organizing committee which, however, declared:

"It shall ever be our purpose as Americans to defend our country and our free institutions against foreign invasion. Organized steel workers of the nation will support our government in any emergency."

The war resolution, passed unanimously, declared "labor wants no war or any part of it" and "it must ever be the purpose of the United States to remain out of these (foreign) wars."

Delegates yesterday voted appreciation for the "tremendous gains" made by labor during the Roosevelt administration. They also approved a proposal advanced by Chairman Philip Murray and other officers to arrange for a merger in 1942 of the SWOC and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers union, another CIO unit.

The move is being undertaken because of the grave fear that Switzerland will be drawn into the war through invasion.

50,000 PLANES ASKED IN TALK BY ROOSEVELT

President Warns Congress That Cities Are Open to Raids by Air.

past few weeks have made it clear to all of our citizens," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that the possibility of attack on vital American zones ought to make it essential that we have the physical, the ready, ability to meet those attacks and to prevent them from reaching their objectives."

He cited the repeated lessons of "nations that were not ready were unable to get ready."

United States airplane production has been stepped up from 6,000 to 12,000 planes a year, he said, largely because of the placing of foreign orders. He asked congress not to take action which in any way would hamper or delay delivery of American made planes to foreign nations (the Allies) which have huge orders here or seek to purchase further units.

"That," he said, "from the point of view of our own national defense would be extremely short sighted."

Notable in Mr. Roosevelt's request for appropriations and authorizations were items aggregating $200,000,000 to go directly to him for the improvement of national defense.

"At this time," he said, "I am asking the immediate appropriation by the congress of a large sum of money for four primary purposes:

"First, to procure the essential equipment of all kinds for a larger and thoroughly rounded out army.

"Second, to replace or modernize all old army and navy equipment with the latest type of equipment.

"Third, to increase production facilities for everything needed for the army and navy for national defense. We require the ability to turn out quickly infinitely greater war supplies.

"Fourth, to speed up to a 24-hour basis all existing army and navy contracts, and all new contracts to be awarded.

"I ask for immediate appropriation of $896,000,000 divided approximately as follows:

1. For the army ..$546,000,000
2. For the navy and marine corps $250,000,000
3. To the president $100,000,000

"In addition to the above sum, I ask authorizations for the army, navy and marine corps to make contract obligations in the further sum of $186,000,000

"And to the president an additional authorization to make contract obligations for $100,000,000."

Mr. Roosevelt said the people must "recast their thinking about national defense." He cited the changed methods of warfare by land and air, the "treacherous use of fifth columns" and the lighting attacks capable of destruction hundreds of miles behind the lines.

He told of parachute troops and their landings far within enemy territory. He added that all up to the element of surprise and his proposal for 50,000 planes—an extraordinary number—was to prevent such surprise attack from reaching any objective in the United States.

And he said our responsibility extends throughout the western hemisphere.

"Our own vital interests are widespread," Mr. Roosevelt said. "More than ever the protection of the whole American hemisphere against invasion or control or domination by non-American nations has the united support of the 21 American republics, including the United States. More than ever this protection calls for ready-at-hand weapons capable of great mobility because of the potential speed of modern attack."

Nothing could be further from the truth, Mr. Roosevelt assured congress, than "loose talking and thinking" by persons who say the army and navy are not first class or that money has been wasted on them.

He said our navy is stronger than at any time before, the army at its greatest peace time strength and the national guard and service reserves better equipped and prepared than during any other peacetime period. But he said every week since the outbreak of war has brought new lessons.

"There are some who say that democracy cannot cope with the new techniques of government developed in recent years by a few countries," Mr. Roosevelt said. "This I reject.

"I, too, pray for peace—

"Our task is plain. Our defenses must be invulnerable, our security absolute."

REPORT ITALY READY TO GO TO WAR TODAY

U. S. Observers Say Il Duce Now Ready to Send His Army Against Allies.

facing Italian-occupied Albania, just across the entrance of the Adriatic from the heel of the Italian boot.

(Apparently the Greeks were feeling the pinch of Allied and Italian rivalry for strategic position in the eastern Mediterranean. However, insecurity of communications from Athens, by way of Budapest, the channel of this dispatch, and perhaps Greek censorship obscured the full meaning of the troop movements.

(The telephone connections from Athens to Budapest was broken in the middle of the dispatch.)

It was reported anew, without confirmation, that Great Britain was pressing Greece for permission to establish naval bases on Greek islands.

The British-French battle fleet based at Alexandria, Egypt, had put to sea for "scheduled maneuvers" and this caused new uneasiness among the Greeks.

Colonel Papademas, undersecretary of war and outranked only by Premier General John Metaxas as head of Greece's armed forces, arrived at the frontier region of Yanina to take personal charge of general preparedness measures.

The Yanina district on the Greek mainland is flanked at sea by the Greek island of Corfu, at the neck of the Adriatic, the Otranto strait.

Corfu, back of which the Greeks laid their frontier defenses, has been the object of Italian ambitions because of its dominating position — virtually a cork for the Adriatic if fortified strongly enough.

An Alexandria dispatch said that thousands of Italians in Egypt were starting to liquidate their households and businesses while official Italian sources there acknowledged that the situation was "delicate."

American Citizens In Balkans Leaving.

BUDAPEST —(INS)— American citizens in the Balkans today contemplated leaving for the United States lest the European war spread to southeastern Europe and strand them in a danger zone.

Reports from Belgrade stated that Americans in Yugoslavia have decided to depart on the next available boat.

In Budapest, American residents are considering sending their wives and children home, although they have received no official orders from the United States legation.

Wives of staff members of the American legation will remain in Budapest, according to present plans.

It was pointed out that Americans wishing to leave may face difficulties, since the vessels sailing to America from Italy are fully booked.

Dutch Prisoners--Victim of War's Bombs

Trudging wearily under guard toward a prison camp are these Dutch soldiers whose resistance against the German invaders ceased when the Dutch high command ordered a surrender. The five-day blitzkrieg has now made a vassal state of Holland.

Sprawled against the corner of a shattered Amsterdam building lies the body of a little Dutch school girl, flung there by the blast of an air bomb. Staring at the broken body of the child in numb despair, is a wounded man. The Dutch surrender came too late for them.

UNUSUAL STONE HAMMER FOUND

BUTTE, Mont.—(U.P.)—A new field of archeological exploration may be opened near here as the result of discovery of a half-buried stone hammer by William E. Daily while rabbit hunting near Homestake, Mont.

Daily said the stone tool apparently had been partially exposed by water erosion. The head is about 4¼ inches in length and about 3 inches in diameter at its thickest part.

It is egg-shaped and smooth, with a groove around the middle, apparently chipped out to secure the handle, which had long since disintegrated.

SPEAKER TELLS OF PROBLEMS OF YOUTH, HOW THEY'RE BEING MET

Youth problems, and the methods used in developing the Junior Achievement movement in suburbs of Pittsburgh and other western Pennsylvania communities, provided the basis of an address given at Tuesday's Rotary meeting by Carl S. Coler, Pittsburgh Rotarian and president of the National Association of Foremen.

Coler, who was instrumental in encouraging a half dozen unemployed young men to make employment for themselves by starting a small company in which each of the boys was enabled to do some kind of remunerative work, told of the interest displayed by the boys and ways in which they developed ability that brought opportunities for regular employment.

He explained how the movement had grown and the encouragement given by adult organizations in cities and towns where the plan was started.

"About one half million young people in the United States reach employable age each year," said the speaker, "and for the past ten years many of these have not been absorbed into employment. Among the estimated 8,000,000 persons now unemployed probably one half are young people who have never been regularly employed. It is to help as many as possible of these unemployed boys and girls solve their problems of making a place for themselves and finding some kind of useful work that the Junior Achievement movement was started."

Louis A. Ott was program chairman of the meeting. M. Dale Ward presented resolutions memorializing the late Fred A. Chamberlain, a charter member of the club.

Robert C. Remy was appointed delegate from the Mansfield club to the convention of Rotary International, to be held in Havana, June 9 to 14, and Charles P. Siegenthaler was named as alternate.

Kiwanis Club's Anniversary

THE KIWANIS CLUB of Mansfield is today observing the twentieth anniversary of its organization, with a ladies night party this evening—taking a look backward at two decades of pleasant fellowship and community service and looking ahead to further opportunities to exemplify the club's motto, "We Build."

Started in May 1920 by a small group of Mansfield's business and professional men, the Kiwanis club has fitted admirably into the needs of this community for the individual and group activities to which such organizations are devoted. Growth of the club to its present membership of 79 has been consistently maintained, with application of classification rules which permit membership of two representatives of the same line of business, agricultural, institutional or professional life.

Early work of the Mansfield club was devoted to support of a good roads campaign which was engaging public interest at the time the club was formed, and other forms of service which appeared to promise community progress.

In recent years the club and its individual members have placed emphasis on encouraging the work of Friendly House and has been liberal in its support of the program of that agency. Members have found time, however, to perform personal service along varied lines and to aid in promoting numerous community projects.

What has now grown into Kiwanis International, with more than two thousand clubs and a membership above 100,000 in the United States and Canada, began in 1914 as the idea of a few men in Detroit who formed a business men's club for which the name "Kiwanis" was soon afterward chosen, from the Indian word "Kee-wanis," which suggests self expression. By 1916 more than twenty clubs had been formed and the organization's scope was extended into Canada. Four years later Kiwanis was brought to Mansfield, by which time a total of 267 clubs had been organized.

As they assemble tonight for their anniversary meeting Mansfield Kiwanians are justified in a feeling of pride in past accomplishments and confidence in the future of their club.

Fine Record of Community Service

THE tragic suddenness with which death came to Philip Smith yesterday afternoon was a shock to this entire community, in which Mr. Smith had been prominently identified with a wide variety of activities for many years.

To those familiar with the varied interests of Mr. Smith in community affairs it was a source of wonderment that he found time for all of the things to which he gave earnest attention, in addition to the regular employment in which he was engaged from young manhood.

As a member of the Mansfield Recreational Board from 1928 to 1937 and as a Boy Scout leader for fifteen years, Mr. Smith evidenced particular interest in matters pertaining to young people of the city and was untiring in his efforts to improve playground conditions and provide a wholesome atmosphere for children and recreational facilities for the city as a whole.

Recognition of his service to the Boy Scout organization came within the past month when he was given the Silver Beaver award for work in behalf of boyhood in this community, and also a veteran award to mark the completion of fifteen years as a scoutmaster.

Teaching a Sunday school class in St. John's Evangelical church was a natural part of Mr. Smith's desire to be of helpful service in all possible ways and evidenced the broad spread of his ability.

His civic interest was also shown in political activity and by his service in city council, where he displayed sincerity and understanding that made his services valuable. Traffic problems were seriously regarded by him and he was recently named as chairman of council's traffic committee.

The death of Phil Smith, at the age of 46, is a distinct loss to this community and his passing will be mourned by many whose respect and admiration he had won by the earnestness and energy he displayed in so many creditable activities.

Mansfield Days In the Stores

WHILE thoughts may be directed along many lines these days, the simple fact remains that it is important for everybody to go along in as nearly a normal way as possible and to give attention to home and family needs.

As something of a relief from the tension of war conditions in Europe and the political interest in this week's primaries and the coming election, it is gratifying to note that, thus far, American habits of living are practically unchanged and the people of this country are proceeding in their accustomed way, maintaining their homes and buying things they need for themselves and their families.

And, in accordance with custom, today and tomorrow are Mansfield Days in local stores, under sponsorship of the Retail Merchants association, and with the many special offerings usual to these occasions.

A belated spring season has resulted in exceptionally attractive bargains being available in seasonable merchandise and a visit to Mansfield stores today or tomorrow will be well worthwhile in savings on purchases.

Growth In Air Transport

A FEW years ago, observes a business commentator, air travel in this country was but a fraction of 1 per cent of the load carried by Pullmans. Last year in April the ratio had risen to 7 per cent and last month it was nearly 12 per cent. Meanwhile the Pullmans themselves have been doing better.

It is an impressive picture of the progress of commercial aviation in this country, which seems to have entered the flying age. Evidence of this can be seen at any airport. The European war, by its effective military use of the air, stimulates flying everywhere.

Olympics In Virginia

AT THE VIRGINIA OLYMPICS last week more than 800 contestants and 1,500 visitors gathered at the University of Virginia for the combined track and literary meet. Twenty-six schools were represented. They took part in one-act plays, debates, track events, tennis, a circus, engineering exhibitions, and so on, all included in the "Olympics."

It is pleasant to hear of so many young people holding games to test physical and mental prow... The ancient Greeks, from whom modern beloved in developing mind and body together.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Even a bug can be a victim of propaganda. Seventeen-year locusts, especially.

Puritan ministers started the anti-17-year locust propaganda 300 years ago. What the Massachusetts preachers said about the insect troubadors was character asassination, no less. The cicadas still haven't lived it down.

It seems the Puritan farmers got scared when the ground practically exploded and billions of insects came forth. They'd never seen anything like that in England.

It was a swell opportunity for the ministers to throw a little fear into the backsliders. So they announced that the insects were locusts. It was another visitation, they preached, like to the plague of locusts that laid waste Egypt in Biblical times.

Locusts Aren't Locusts.

THE Puritan theologians were nature-faking. Seventeen-year locusts aren't locusts at all. They're periodic cicadas, no relation to the voracious insects of the Bible. But the preachers poured it on, and the bad name stuck.

Now a 17-year locust "plague" is coming again this year, the biggest since 1923. Uncle Sam's entomologists say there's no cause for alarm. Adult cicadas don't eat at all. They do make the woodlots ring when several million get in tune at once, but who'd begrudge a cicada his brief few weeks of song after waiting patiently for his turn for 17 years?

As bugs go, cicadas are high-type citizens. They aren't major pests, and their life cycle is the most interesting in bugdom. For instance:

The eggs are polite, and wait their turn to be hatched. The first egg laid hatches first, and so on. A female lays about 500 eggs in bark. It doesn't hurt older trees, and rarely injures younger ones.

The hatched larvae drops to the ground, and burrow in for 17 years a la Rip Van Winkle. Nobody knows why it takes 'em so long to develop.

Somehow, after 17 years in a solitary burrow, they can tell to the hour when the other pupae are about to emerge. All the males come out one night, the females several nights later.

Music In Their Legs.

THEIR "digging clothes" in which they spent 17 years split down the back when they emerge. The cicada steps out in a milk-white debut dress, complete with gauze wings. They turn darker in an hour. Then they have black bodies, orange legs, and big, red eyes.

After that, life's one brief round of song—but only for the males. They sing choruses in the top branches of a tree, solos in the lower branches, by rubbing their wings on hollow sound boxes on their bodies.

The bureau of entomology finds that cicadas are homebodies, who stick close to their own localities. A brood emerges somewhere every year, but is restricted to a definite area.

The American broods of cicadas have been numbered. This year's crop is Brood 14. It is the largest and most widely distributed. The 1940 17-year locusts are spread from Cape Cod to Illinois. Brood 10, which is due again in 1953, is next largest.

That's the not-very-scary lowdown on "17-year locusts," who are going to visit us in a "plague" this summer. Too bad they got the wrong kind of publicity, back there in 1634, isn't it?

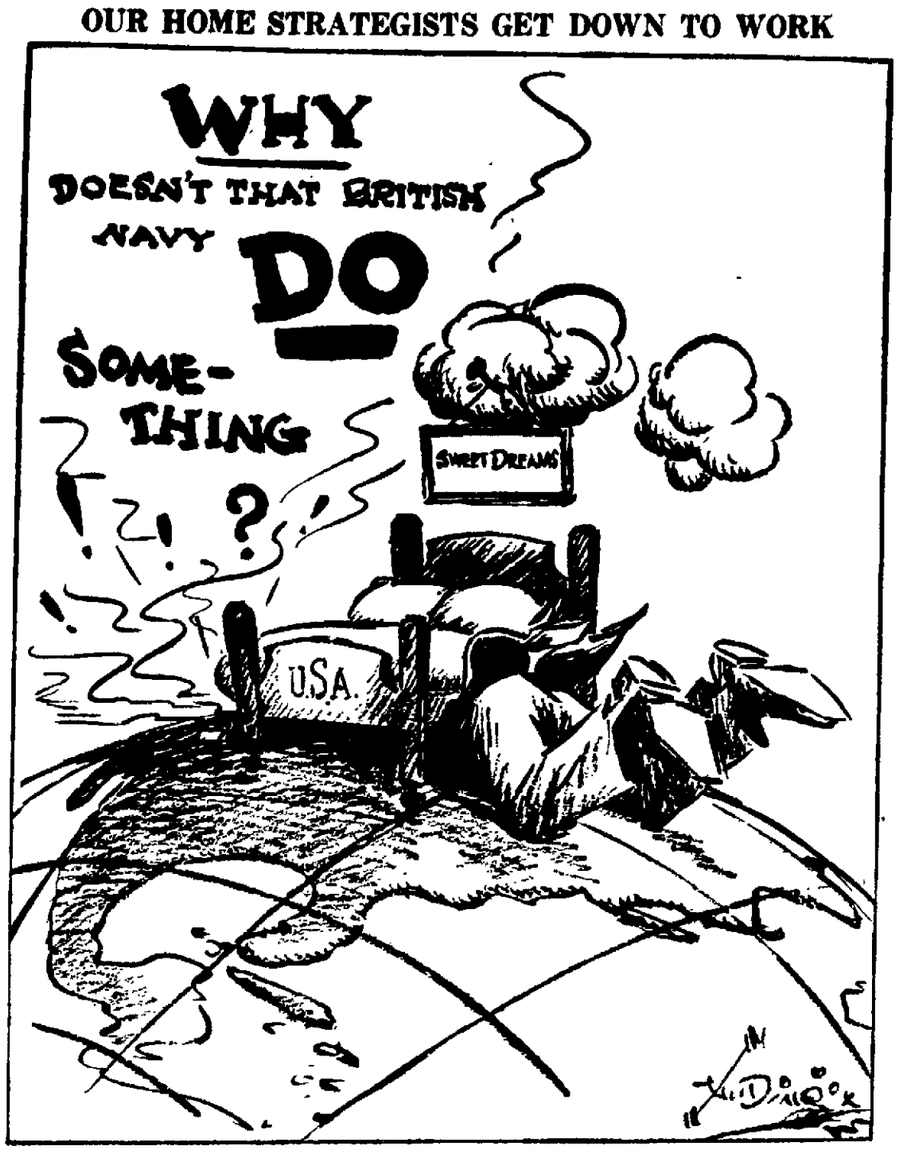
OUR HOME STRATEGISTS GET DOWN TO WORK



Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There is a drama on Broadway that has political columnists in Washington disturbed and excited no less than the play critics in New York. It is a study by Robert Sherwood of the recent Finnish war.

No one who has seen or read Mr. Sherwood's "Idiot's Delight" can deny that he hates war, and none who sees or reads this newest expression, "There Shall Be No Night" can fail to understand his horror and loathing for totalitarian aggression.

It is a dangerous play in a way, and already powerful voices have been raised against it on the grounds that it is likely to carry too much weight with American opinion. This is true. You cannot sit through this tragedy, if you believe in democracy, and remain unmoved.

IT HAS already been claimed that Mr. Sherwood's play is dangerous propaganda. If saying you are against a thing is propaganda, then this play is certainly propaganda. But Mr. Sherwood rises at this point to ask, just what is propaganda? It is a word that has lost most of the traces of its original meaning. This word is now applied mostly to despicable things. But if a minister influences his congregation in matters of divinity, that is propaganda, too.

This play is acted by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, the sure-fire combination on Broadway (with Sherwood-written dramas) that has never failed. He wrote, and they acted in, both "Reunion in Vienna" and "Idiot's Delight." And for their premiere, the most distinguished audience of the season was present. Noel Coward came over from France, on relief from his war duties, and barely had time to get from the boat to the theater before the curtain went up. Coward seemed puzzled, almost dazed, by what is going on in Europe.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE, Helen Hayes, Charlie MacArthur, Fredric March, Albert Einstein, the scientist (curiously, this play is about a Finnish scientist, who is really more of an internationalist than a Finn), Ruth Gordon, Sam Harris, Ethel Barrymore, Mary Pickford, Neysa McMein, John C. Wilson (Noel Coward's manager), Kurt Weil (the composer), Owen Davis (playwright), Maxwell Anderson (playwright), Irving Berlin, Lee Shubert (producer), Conde Nast, George S. Kaufman (playwright) . . . all these, and scores more were there. It was the season's premiere plum.

This is a play that cannot and will not be ignored by anyone. If you are in the minority which does not like it, you will hate it. It will disturb you and distress you. But you cannot remain indifferent.

Isolationists are of the opinion that this sort of drama is almost certain to carry America a step closer to intervention. My opinion is that it advises us to reexamine our articles of faith, and then to man the dykes.

Listen, World!

"Harvest at Stillmeadow."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ISN'T THERE any sanity left in the world?" she wails. She's an ordinary wife in a little Iowa village. Her life has been a round of homely chores and friendly service since she was born, back in the eighties. Brown haired, rosy-cheeked—she was born smiling, loving her world . . . taking for granted its sense of kindliness and fair play. But, in this last year, that trust has been shaken to the roots. The world she thought she knew so well, had gone mad. Watching her tall sons and grandsons, she shudders. Must they go next? Where will the nightmare end? Writing, she cries:

"It seems as if a person couldn't have faith in anything any more. Have all the old, sweet, sound things been swept away? All this hurry and horror—sometimes my head swirls so I can hardly think. Aren't there any people left who live in the old, happy way?"

Any people left who live in the old happy way? Yes, my dear, there are millions of them. Millions of them doing it lustily here in our America . . . millions more longing to do so over the sea. A few mad men—monsters!—have grabbed the reins of power, but the human race hasn't turned monstrous. Still it loves the old and precious things—the peaceful ways of life . . .

The scent of new-mown clover in the Spring . . . the tang of leaf smoke in the fall. The fragrance of a kitchen filled with pickling spice. The sound of children laughing in a twilit street . . . the flicker of fire against the wall . . . the touch of a well-loved hand. These are the things that live and last in every normal heart, even though Nightmare spreads its bat wings over the land.

I ran across a book that held these things only this week—and a greater comfort in the midst of madness I have yet to find. It's Gladys Taber's story of her full and happy life in the old Connecticut house "where three children and several dozen dogs run riot." "Harvest at Stillmeadow" Little, Brown & Co., Publishers.

All the things that lie in the heart of America—the things that made America—are there in this simple recital of good living. Simple pleasures. Contented toil. Love and humor—liberty—and always, when the night falls, peace. Just a journal of busy, friendly days—but it renews the heart. If you love dogs, listen to this:

"There may be things in this sad old world that reward efforts as richly as dogs; there may be, but it's not likely. A dog will be all that you want him to be, as nearly as he can manage. True, he will eat your best slippers and hide a dog-hating guest's best hat. He tracks in mud; digs up the asters. But in those bleak hours we all pass through, when the heart is lonely and sad, there will be a warm, comforting muzzle thrust into your palm. Dark eyes will look up with simple faith and love. A soft tongue will move over your fingers, and a sturdy body press against your knee. Then you may cry a little in his deep warm fur and decide you can keep going a little longer after all."

It runs like that—this "gay and zestful chronicle of a happy life." Laughter and tears—shrewd, common sense—talks about babies, puppies, old New England houses—recipes for stuffed cucumbers, Kennebunk pickles, baked kidney beans—an hour when "the iris lean against the blue May dusk, pale honey and amethyst and copper." The loved and lasting things that lie in the human heart . . . the things that made America. Clutch them these days in books like this—in blessed memories. THEY STILL GO ON!

Timely Editorial

Rhubarb Time.

That season has arrived, in spite of rainy and cold delays, in which native and domestic rhubarb, or as the oldsters used to call it, pieplant, has come to a period where it may be used for pies or sauce.

Of course southern rhubarb has been in the market for a long time, and more recently the hothouse variety has been offered for sale. But now the stalks growing alongside the garden fence have reached sufficient length to be gathered and cut up for cooking, and that sort of rhubarb has the official kick in it, the taste that belongs, the brittleness which all good rhubarb possesses.

No wonder it is called pieplant, for it makes a delicious pie, and about all that is lost is the leaves and the outside rind which is easily peeled off. It makes a nice tart, and therefore, fit for an American, for all Americans are kings or queens. Ohio State Journal.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When Sumner Welles was in Berlin on his peace pilgrimage, the Hitler entourage told him flatly that if Britain wanted to continue the war, Germany was ready to lose 9,000 planes—if necessary—in raining the greatest barrage of bombs in history on England.

This gives the key to the present German drive to the sea through the Low Countries. What Hitler wants in Holland is air bases closer to England. With Dutch air bases, plus new submarine bases in Norway, the Nazis plan to put the greatest squeeze in history on England, subject her to a terrific air bombardment, and land invading forces for the first time since the triumphal march of William the Conqueror in 1066.

The military strategy of the Nazis is the old Schlieffen plan used by the kaiser's troops in the last war. Briefly summarized, the plan is: Outflank, Develop, Destroy.

To this, the Nazis have added some streamlining of their own, namely the "locusts" or parachute troops, whose objective is to get into the enemy's radio and telegraph offices, disrupt communications, and cause as much confusion as possible behind the lines.

Confusion also has been created by Nazi agents sent to Holland in advance. The Dutch government had realized the presence of these spies and done its best to detect them. Many of them were dressed in the uniform of Dutch soldiers, and in order to spot that, sudden and secret orders were issued such as: "Between 2 p. m. and 5 p. m. no soldier shall salute an officer."

Then all soldiers who saluted officers were arrested. Some were found to be men who saluted from force of habit, but some were found to be Nazi agents, who naturally had no access to sudden army orders.

The Dutch army even changed its uniform frequently during recent months, in order to prevent the Germans from copying it wholesale for Nazi agents.

Roosevelt's Callers.

A DEEP wrinkle furrowed the brow of General Edwin (Pa) Watson, genial White House secretary, as he eyed the long line of callers waiting their turn to see the president. It was 12 o'clock, and the president was scheduled to receive Secretary Hull and Under Secretary Welles at 1 p. m. for an important luncheon.

Watson's eye shifted nervously from the clock to Representative Joe Casey, good looking young Massachusetts Democrat, who was to go in next.

"How long will you take, Joe?" asked Watson. "Will ten minutes be enough?"

"I guess so. You know, all we are allowed in the house is five minutes."

"Can you tell your story in that time?"

"Well, that all depends, General," replied Casey. "You see, in the house, while our speeches are limited to five minutes, we don't have to yield to anyone. But with the president it's different. He does a lot of talking himself. Now, if I can beat him to the draw and get an agreement not to yield, I could get through in five minutes."

"Say, that's a great idea," beamed Watson. "From now on I'll tell all visitors that we are applying house debate rules to White House conferences. That'll keep things moving on schedule here."

Note—Fond of young Casey, Roosevelt chatted with him for more than 20 minutes, while Watson verged on apoplexy.

German Supplies.

DIPLOMATS arriving here from Berlin tell a significant story of Germany's shortage of food and materials. Undoubtedly this had something to do with Hitler's decision to stake everything on victory this summer.

Returning officials report that "Ersatz" coffee is brewed from apple peelings.

The shortage is not only in foodstuffs but also in clothing, which is rationed to insure the supply for the armed forces. A woman may buy clothing only to the extent of 100 "points" in the course of a whole year. And a single pair of silk stockings rates 30 points.

The ration allowed on food cards is not too bad, but in many cases the food stocks run out and the shopper cannot buy even the amount allowed by the ration card.

More important from the military viewpoint is the report that German gasoline is of such poor quality that it befouls the motors and causes frequent replacements.

In other words, the German war machine, cheered by the German people, is moving ahead with precision toward its conquest, but the big question in the minds of U. S. observers is—how long is the supply line?

Note—German people are forbidden to listen to foreign radio broadcasts, but in many German households at night you might see a strange looking mound covered by a bedspread — the family huddled together secretly near the radio, listening to broadcasts from overseas.

Lost Library.

THE FAVORITE story of the president's at present is about a library that burned down in Georgia. Here's how he tells it to callers:

A Georgia politico called on him with a sorrowful plea to use his influence to get a WPA grant for a new library.

"What happened to the old one?" asked the President.

"It was destroyed by fire," replied the visitor sadly. "And Mr. President, I fear for the literacy of my home folks if a new library isn't built quickly. No town should be without a library. It's a great cultural influence."

"Absolutely," agreed the president. "How long has your town been without a library?"

"Seventy-six years."

"Seventy-six years!"

"Yes, sir. Sherman burned it down."

Merry-Go-Round.

TOURISTS are pouring in at the White House at the rate of 8,000 a day, of whom 1700 see the private parlors by congressional letter. The others see only the East Room and ground floor. Aides expect this flow to reach a million by the end of August. . . . When Sumner Welles had no news one day at a state department press conference, he apologized: "I'll try to do better by you tomorrow." . . . A tourist, after examining the Czech legation inside and out, exclaimed, "Do you mean to say the German government pays for all this?" The answer was an emphatic "No" from Czech Minister Hurban, who stood the Germans off when they tried to take the legation last year. . . . At the end of 1937, TVA had 12,000 farm customers; at the end of 1939, 42,000.

Health and Diet

Good Health Averts Gallstones.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

GALLSTONES are gritty deposits formed out of the mineral parts of the bile, which form in the gall bladder. They may vary as to number, size and shape. There may be one or 1,000; they may be as small as a grain of sand or as large as a lemon. They are often the shape of dice or small pyramids from grinding together. Usually they are colored white, gray, yellow, brown or green, taking their color from the color of the bile.

They are deposited in the gall bladder, in a great majority of cases, because of infection. The infection may occur from the intestines, and here is one place where constipation plays an important part in the derangement of health.

More Often in Women.

Dr. A. C. Ivy, of Northwestern University, Chicago, says, "Experimental results show that constipation or irritation of the colon . . . may predispose to a slow flow of bile and decreased bile formation."

This stasis in the gall bladder is the most important step in the formation of gallstones. Gallstones occur in women more frequently than in men because women are more frequently constipated and also because during the state of pregnancy stasis occurs in all the muscular organs of the abdomen.

Naturally gallstones occur more often after middle age. All the factors which have to do with their formation accumulate during youth and come to the climax after the age of 40.

The treatment of gallstones depends very considerably on the seriousness of the condition. The mere existence of gallstones is not sufficient to justify treatment, especially surgical treatment. There is an apparent paradox in the fact that the smaller the gallstone, the more trouble it is likely to make. This is easy to understand, however, if one will consider that a small stone can get into the small ducts leading from the gall bladder to the intestines easier than a large stone.

Medical Routine.

Many people with gallstones get along very well on a medical routine, which includes eating non-irritating foods, daily exercise and the occasional use of a mild saline laxative, such as one-half teaspoonful of sodium phosphate in a large glass of warm water before breakfast.

Treatment at our mineral spring spas in the United States, such as Saratoga, White Sulphur, Hot Springs, French Lick, Excelsior Springs, and others is very helpful routine, spring and fall.

A diet for gallstones, in order to rest the gall bladder, is fat-free as follows:

No butter, olive oil salad dressing, eggs, cream, milk or fat part of meats.

Woman Works As Night Watchman In Girl's School

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Elizabeth McDonald, night watchman at Mt. St. Joseph Academy for girls, likes her job.

Slight for a job supposedly fraught with danger, Miss McDonald is 4 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. She says she never is frightened or lonely, and never has encountered a critical situation such as fire or a burglary while making the rounds of the large academy building.

"In between rounds I read," she said. "Sleep? Oh, goodness, no. I wouldn't be a very good night watchwoman if I did that."

Alaska's wettest spot is Little Port Walter, with 255.23 inches recorded in 1939.

Nazis Break Through Allied Meuse Front

Three Mechanized Divisions of Fresh German Troops Bolster Attack.

armored columns to smash at the sides and to the rear of the heavy German armored corps.

The German break-through between Namur and Dinant appeared to be regarded as the most serious threat of the day. It was reported to have been accomplished when heavy German tanks succeeded in forcing the Meuse river at three points.

They were reportedly followed by light, mechanized units and low-flying airplanes making a quick effort to widen the breech and attack the rear-positions of the Allied lines extending along the River Dyle through Louvain—also subject to heavy attack—to Antwerp.

(Paris dispatches reporting the German break-through were subject to heavy French censorship. In one dispatch four lines were eliminated and in another seven words. In both instances the censored words apparently gave details of the German penetration.)

However, the crossings of the Meuse were said to have been effected after brisk Allied defense and counter-attacks had practically brought the initial German drive to a halt. The counter-attacks were particularly fierce in the Sedan sector where the Germans won a foothold in the Maginot fortifications.

At the same time it was reported by the Petit Parisien that the Germans had succeeded in occupying the Longwy about 40 miles southeast of Sedan.

(It was noted in connection with the report of the radio agency that this is a semi-official news organization, hence its reports of a French reverse carry considerable authority.)

Elsewhere along the main Maginot line fortifications between Montmedy and Switzerland, German attacks were reported to have failed of effect.

A strong German armored column is battering at the Allied defense lines around Louvain in an apparent attempt to break through and capture Brussels.

Louvain was described as the vortex of hurricane battle that raged from Sedan on the Maginot line to the bastion of Antwerp where the Allied left flank is anchored.

French advices asserted that the Germans were striving to repeat the techniques of their Polish campaign by hurling armored columns through the Allied defense lines for lightning blows against rearward communications.

These efforts, it was said, are concentrated at the lines defending Louvain, again battered and bombed 26 years after it was devastated in the German sweep through Belgium in 1914.

The Louvain lines are held by the British as are the bulk of the positions from Louvain north to Antwerp.

The Paris Soir reported that a great battle was raging between Antwerp and Namur and that Brussels was the immediate German objective.

Concern was felt here for Switzerland. The Paris Soir reported German troops maneuvering near the Swiss frontier at Lake Constance. Rail traffic through Basle has practically ceased.

The radio agency reported that six air alarms were sounded in the Lille region last night and two in the Le Havre area.

Germany had thrown its utmost striking power into the Meuse river front between Namur and Mezieres on the French-Belgian frontier.

It was estimated that beween 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 men were engaged in a battle which the Germans said might decide the issue of the war within a week and the British reported that the Germans outnumbered the Allies in the proportion of 10 to six.

A high French military source admitted that the Germans had broken through at three points along the River Meuse between Namur and Mezieres and had succeeded in widening their pockets on the Allied side and pushing them forward deeply.

But, he added, the Allies had brought up the "necessary" reinforcements to halt and smash the German mechanized columns which were the spearhead of a gigantic attack.

Recognizing the tremendous power and the gathering momentum of the German drive, the Allied high command had decided instead of awaiting the Germans in their strongest fortified areas to go out and meet them, in an attempt to slow the drive—believing that once slowed it would fail.

French troops had poured through the Maginot defense line to challenge the Germans in the open and try to halt a threatened break through.

A French military spokesman said that the troops on the Namur-Mezieres front were engaged in a wild melee, with Allied forces, spread in great depth, resisting the thrusting German mechanized units.

Brussels, admitting like Paris that the Germans had forced their way across the Meuse at new points, asserted that French infantry had held German infantrymen and prevented them from following up the mechanized units.

Allied forces, a French military informant said, were spread in great depth, resisting the German mechanized units in scattered fights on the Namur-Mezieres front.

The informant described the present situation as a confused one, since the Allies had shifted from positional defense to movement, hoping to paralyze the German columns and drive them back across the Meuse.

The Allied defensive positions, the informant asserted, eliminated any fear concerning rear positions.

Steadily gaining momentum in their drive of unprecedented striking power, the Germans seemed trying not only to widen the footholds they had gained on the Allied side of the Meuse above Sedan but to extend their operations westward. This would mean a threat to the French troops who, farther north, were fighting stubborn rear guard actions between Namur and Givet.

It was suggested that farther north the Germans were executing a gigantic turning movement, a sweep down through the Antwerp-Brussels area, trying to crumple up the Allied left wing along the Antwerp-Namur line which protects Brussels and thus roll the Allied front back into France.

German attacks in this theater, before Waterloo where Napoleon fell, had been effectively broken up, it was asserted, and to France the Sedan-Mezieres-Namur front was the more important now.

British Rain Bombs On German Communications

LONDON — In the heaviest blow it has yet dealt, Britain's air force poured tons of bombs on German communications east of the Rhine river, the London air ministry announced today.

The massed raids were directed against German communications supporting the Nazi legions in Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Causing many fires to break out amid the thunder of heavy explosions, the attacks were pressed home by the Royal Air Force throughout the night, according to the announcement.

"The Royal Air Force last night carried out east of the Rhine a big offensive against the enemy's road and rail communications which were supporting the forces of their invasion of the low countries and Luxembourg," said the communique.

"The attacks lasted throughout the night. Many tons of bombs were released. Road and rail communications were attacked and at many points fire broke out and heavy explosions were caused.

"It was the heaviest R.A.F. attack yet made."

An earlier official British communique stated that British expeditionary forces in Belgium successfully withstood a series of German assaults. It said:

"The B.E.F. after hard fighting has successfully held serious German attacks.

"Since the German offensive began, the B.E.F. air component has destroyed at least 124 enemy planes.

"B.E.F. anti-aircraft artillery shot down at least 23 planes in the rear areas and many others were shot down by our forward troops."

Audible proof of the gigantic battle raging in Belgium and around the Sedan area of France reached British soil at Deal in the form of repercussions from the gunfire on the battlefields.

Houses at Deal and other points along England's southeastern coast shook and vibrated while doors and windows rattled violently.

The rumbling lasted all day yesterday. Residents of the coastal area said they were like the tremblings of an earthquake.

On the Antwerp-Sedan front, the air ministry said, Allied planes have carried out intensive operations, blasting German troops and destroying pontoon bridges thrown over the Meuse river.

Belgian Forces Cling to Forts, Hold Back Germans

(By United Press)

LONDON—Admitting that Belgian forces had withdrawn in orderly manner at some points before a powerful German tank and airplane attack, Belgian Minister of Communications Paul Delfosse asserted today that the Germans were suffering heavily and that the Liege, Namur and other forts held out.

Broadcasting over the Brussels radio, Delfosse said that German air superiority and dominance in heavy tanks had forced the withdrawals.

Previously King Leopold III in a special proclamation broadcast over the radio a direct appeal to the men of the Liege forts to fight to the end.

"I am calling you, forts of Liege!" the king said. "I address you, Colonel Modard, commander; officers, non-commissioned officers and men: Resist to the utmost for the fatherland. I am proud of you."

Delfosse, in his broadcast, said:

"We are inflicting heavy losses on the Germans. The forts of Liege, the fortress of Namur as well as other fortifications are holding out against numerous attacks and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

"British troops have arrived in large numbers and are assisting us to check the enemy's pressure, while the British air force is harassing German communications. Our army is intact. That is a token of victory. Keep calm and confident. Our army is resisting magnificently and is gaining the admiration of the world."

PEONY BLOOMS BY SUN LAMP

Husband Sits Up All Night So Wife Can Win Prize.

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Mrs. Sam McDaniel planned to show a particular peony bloom in Atlanta's flower show but persistent cold weather kept the flower from blooming.

On the eve of the judging, husband Sam came to the rescue. He focussed his sun lamp on the tardy plant, sat up nearly all night, blowing gently on the bud.

Came dawn and an opening bloom. Came the show and a prize for Mrs. McDaniel.

PREPARES FOR OFFICIAL COUNT

Election Board to Work on Sunday to Finish Primary Election Job.

precinct for a recount, which would necessitate posting $920 in cash for the 92 precincts of the county.

If there should be a discrepancy in the counting of the votes, the money would be returned, but if the vote remained the same as that turned in Tuesday night, Deringer would forfeit the $920.

On the other hand, if there were any errors in compiling the Republican vote in the sheriff's race, they would undoubtedly be ascertained in the official count Sunday.

Clerk Porter said today that the count on delegates and alternates to the national convention would not be completed before tomorrow. These were not counted Tuesday night because of the unusual length of the ballot and number of candidates. Porter said that counting them was merely a matter of form since all of them were elected regardless of the votes cast for each one.

There were eight to be elected in each classification and there were just eight names on the ballots.

Neely, W. Virginia Victor, Calls For Dem Harmony

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—(AP)—Victorious in his intra-party fight with West Virginia's Democratic administration, U. S. Sen. M. M. Neely today pleaded for an end of seven years' party "strife."

Unofficial returns from Tuesday's primary gave Neely a plurality of 48,000 over State Chairman R. Carl Andrews for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Andrews was backed by Gov. Homer A. Holt, leader of the state employes' faction which Neely opposed.

DENVER — (AP) — Louis Middel, 21, was relieved when he got a ticket for speeding.

He told Judge Philip Gilliam he was taking $4,000 to the bank when an automobile began chasing him. His pursuers turned out to be policemen.

Middel's novel excuse prompted Judge Gilliam to suspend a $5 fine.

CHAPTER IX

Jim looked at Brooke as if he were afraid for her.

"Brooke. . . ."

"I won't inflict this on you again," she said, quickly. "It isn't fair."

"I've a pretty broad shoulder to cry on. Cry away."

"I'll try not to cry but I must tell you this. Last night I'd think about myself, telling myself what this mustn't do to me and—and thinking about Rod the next minute. Because, you see, in spite of this, in spite of hating him off and on, in spite of his little letter today, a cowardly letter, I'm still in love with him. Love survives after every illusion has been broken. What kills it? If I could find the answer to that, I'd be free and safe."

He said slowly, "I don't imagine the formula is ever the same."

"Then last night, in all my wild thinking, I told myself I didn't want to be out of love with him, that loving is giving and not receiving, and that it has sustained me for this long and it could go on sustaining me. You don't approve of that, do you? And the wildest thought of all was the one in which he came back to me. . . ."

"That wasn't wild. It was perfectly natural. When somebody hurts you, you always anticipate the time when you can get back at him."

She was talking so much, she thought. . . .

Jim said, "You're worn out. We're going to a movie if they ever bring our dinner. A movie without rhyme or reason, but full of laughs."

"You detest movies except the ones in French. . . ."

"But not a good laugh in any language. You know, when you feel as you do, spending money helps. I don't know why, but it does. Try it, even if you can't afford it. And another thing is eating. I get the most ferocious appetite when I'm unhappy."

"What are the things that make you unhappy?" Always with her he had been serene and good-humored.

"One thing," he drawled, grinning. "That Adam ate that apple and doomed my sex to slavery. I'd like to spend the rest of my life under a palm tree and just not do anything. The ambition bug never bit me. Maybe a few of my spark plugs are missing, but at least I don't lose sleep worrying about the next promotion. Who started this? I hope you're hungry."

As the elevator ascended Brooke wondered if she would see the office where Rod had worked. This was curiously like death—words of sympathy and seeing a place where one's loved one had worked but would never work again. A few days ago an invitation to Barney Glass's office would have made her flutter. Now she was numbed to indifference.

An attractive dark-haired girl looked up over her typewriter as Brooke came in.

She knows, Brooke thought. "I'm Miss Carter. . . ."

"Oh, yes. Mr. Glass is expecting you."

Preceding Brook, she opened the door into a large, luxurious office where Barney, smoking a cigar, his bald pate shining, sat at a huge desk. He grinned, arose and held out his hand.

"Brooke. . . . Sit down."

She sat down, thinking that he was more embarrassed than she.

"Well," he said finally, chewing on a cigar, frowning, avoiding her eyes," I've been thinking about you. Didn't know what you were doing and thought maybe I could help."

He was trying, she knew, to make his crude voice gentler. "It was." . . . He chuckled. "I don't know if anybody can exactly blame a man for marrying a million dollars but—well, she's old enough to be his mother!"

His mouth pulled at one corner. "I'll bet you'd defend him if you had an opening." He wagged his head. "But I can tell you this—it won't last. Can't!"

He looked at her directly then. "There are some men who have to have work and Rod is one of 'em. When I heard it, I thought it was a pretty good joke on me, all right. . . ."

They had probably kidded him unmercifully about his protege who had married a million dollars and a woman old enough to be his mother. And though Barney was trying to laugh at himself, she knew he had been hurt and angered.

Coming to the point, she said, "I have a position here as secretary to an old lady and I'm going to California with her in June. But I do appreciate your thoughtfulness. . . ."

"Oh, that's nothing. Forget it. I knew about that position—that's how I located you. Rod told me, but I didn't know if you were still there." His next grin was a bitter one. "He might have given us two-weeks notice, don't you think? Oh, well. . . ."

She arose. He circled the desk and came to her, holding out his hand again, patting her hand paternally when she gave it to him.

"He's crazy," Barney said. "Give you up for a million bucks? I wouldn't. I thought he was a lot smarter than that. Have yourself a good time and check it off to experience and. . . ."

"That's easily said." He left you with only a job to fill. He left me with a life to fill. . . .

Barney stood at the opened door looking after her, wondering no doubt as she had been wondering what would happen to her next.

* * *

As she stepped from the building to the sidewalk, she stood still a moment. She was free for the afternoon and there wasn't any place to go or any one to see or anything to anticipate. It was awful! Tears blinded her. A man swore as he jostled her and she began to walk — because there wasn't anything else to do. When, half-frozen, she reached the apartment, Ellen said that Mrs. Kingsbury wished to see her.

The old lady, dressed in rustling black, sat by the window with a letter and a magnifying glass in her lap.

"I was beginning to wonder about you," she said sharply. "Here's a letter from my niece. I don't know why she can't write more legibly."

Sitting on the footstool, Brooke took the letter and read:

Dear Aunt Rachel,

You will forgive me for not writing when you know that John has been in such poor health that we find it necessary to give up our apartment here and take a house in Honolulu, the Mitchell house which they have kindly lent us for several months. Indeed were it not for their kindness and the generosity of the Forbes I do not know how we would have managed these past months, with the children ill with measles and John in a highly nervous state and far back in the schedule of work he planned to accomplish. However, in Hawaii, with the children outdoors, we look for peace and the achievement of John's most ambitious work.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

"What a grand and glorious feeling to have all my bills paid in full!"

Yes, things look bright for you . . . after you've cleaned the slate of scattered obligations and put your budget in balance once more. With the help of a single cash loan you can pay off everything you owe and enjoy that "square with the world" feeling.

City Loan payments are small and easy to meet. Before you realize it you are clear of debt and money ahead. That's why we say, "Think it over . . . then let's talk it over privately. A personal loan can set you right before you know it."
